

Postal Service reissues Purple Heart stamp

By Army Sgt. Sara Wood
American Forces Press Service

ARLINGTON NATIONAL CEMETERY, Va. — A new version of a postage stamp commemorating the Purple Heart and all those who have earned it was issued in a ceremony May 26.

At the ceremony, two veterans of the war in Iraq were awarded Purple Hearts by R. James Nicholson, secretary of Veterans Affairs.

“(The Purple Heart) celebrates the indomitable spirit of ordinary Soldiers in extraordinary situations; it embodies our country’s earliest traditions of service and sacrifice,” Secretary Nicholson said before presenting the Purple Heart to Army Spc. Michael Hilliard and Army Spc. Ian Wagner.

The Soldiers were wounded in Iraq while serving with the 101st Airborne Division and the 10th Mountain Division, respectively.

The stamp is a new version of the Purple Heart definitive stamp, first issued in May 2003 by the U.S. Postal Service. USPS is proud to recognize the Purple Heart with this stamp, because it reminds Americans of what people have suffered in the name of freedom, said John E. Potter, postmaster general and chief executive officer of the U.S. Postal Service.

“The award and the men and women it honors say so much about our nation,” Mr. Potter said. “In reissuing this stamp today, we have 50 million chances to tell that story again.”

About 100 Purple Heart recipients attended the ceremony at the invitation of the Military Order of the Purple Heart. James Randles, the order’s national commander, thanked all those who made the reissuance of the stamp possible, and said that the stamp is very important because it is a recognizable symbol that has meaning to service-members of all ages from all services.

Beale Air Show kicks off

By Airman 1st Class George Cloutier
9th RW Public Affairs

With the Beale Air Show this weekend, many individuals on base will be working at or attending the show. These tips will help the show go well for our workers and guests.

To help minimize congestion, and leave parking available for off-base guests, a shuttle bus will be provided which will leave from base housing.

Personnel with ID cards allowing access to base may use the housing shuttle. The shuttle will pick up and drop off at the Foothills Chapel and the base elementary school. Also, those who do not reside in base housing may catch the shuttle at the Outdoor Adventure Center.

The shuttle will pick up and drop off at the Ramoneda Dining Facility and will run continuously to and from housing, beginning at 7 a.m. both days for those visiting or working at the show.

Most parking near the flight line will be used for vendors, exhibitors, performers, media, and distinguished visitors.

There are two vehicle passes for on-base personnel that need to park near the flight line: “On Duty” and “Worker.” The “On Duty” pass is intended for personnel working normal duty not associated with the Air Show. “Worker” parking is for Air Show

Preparation key in emergency situations

By Airman Robert Biermann
9th RW Public Affairs

Beale will welcome many individuals to the air show Saturday and Sunday.

In the event an emergency occurs, Beale is ready. Beale has been preparing for the Air Show for the past several months. Although no emergency is expected it’s always important to be prepared in case something does happen.

“It is unlikely that an emergency event will occur but we have to be prepared and we are,” said Master Sgt. Matthew Freidman, 9th Security Forces NCO-in-charge of operations support. “To prepare we have conducted many drills that simulate real world scenarios. During these drills we use checklists that enumerate the emergency response duties without having to take undue time thinking about it.

Air Force mission goes beyond the job

By 1st Lt. Heather Alden
39th Information Operations Squadron

HURLBURT FIELD, Fla. — Commanders and leaders are always reminding us how important we are to “the mission.” But, how many of us really know what “the mission” is?

I remember being a young senior airman at a commander’s call at MacDill Air Force Base, Fla., and hearing the question, “Do you understand how you contribute to the mission?”

Eyes glazed over, heads nodding, my peers and supervisors affirmed for the commander, “Yes, sir, we know how we contribute to the mission.” I remember nodding myself. I was a communications troop. I made sure people could communicate. That was how I contributed to the mission. Nod, smile. Got it.

The funny thing is, I didn’t even know what kind of aircraft we had at MacDill. How could I possibly have known where I fit in the mission if I didn’t even know what the mission was?

Sure, I knew where to find the mission and vision statements, but to me, they were just fancy words that ambiguously described what the base did. “Yada, yada, yada, global reach ... anytime, anywhere.”

Don’t get me wrong, I see the importance of these kinds of statements. They tell you where you are (mission statement) and where you’re going (vision statement). But, if the troops can’t translate them into facts and concrete concepts, they are just fancy words.

So, what is your unit’s, your wing’s, your major command’s, the Air Force’s and the Department of Defense’s mission? How do you learn about it? How do you teach others what it is?

It’s simple. You walk (or drive) around and ask questions. To help your troops understand your squadron’s mission, take your flight members on an impromptu “tour” of other flights. Nothing formal, nothing fancy. It’s peers teaching peers.

Ask other flights’ members to tell your troops what they do in their flight every day. Tour the offices and the workspaces. Look at the tools and equipment. See it, hear it, touch it, smell it, taste it (sometimes).

When you’re done learning about your unit, take a field trip to another squadron. Do the same thing there. See, hear, touch, smell and taste. Make an effort to tour a different squadron every month.

Even if you are strapped for time day-to-day and have to arrange the tour for near the end of the work day, the insight the troops gain by understanding other units’ operations is worth the time spent. If you take the time to do this, you’ll be amazed at what you — and your troops — learn. You’ll gain an understanding of how this big machine called the U.S. Air Force works. Understanding this will help you understand where you fit into the mission.

I guarantee you, had I been on a tour of a KC-135 Stratotanker when I was an Airman at MacDill, I would have remembered what kinds of planes we had. I would probably even have understood the mission, or at least I would have understood that we did aerial refueling.

Instead, when I was at MacDill, I sat in a building with no windows on 12-hour shifts doing communications stuff. I understood multiplexers and modems, bits and bytes. I was technically proficient at my job, but I was Air Force-stupid. I wasn’t an Airman. I was a comm troop.

If you have the time and inclination to further develop your troops, expose them to things that show how “Big Blue” works. Teach them how to be operational Airmen. Teach about air operations centers, Air Staff and Joint Staff systems and how they interrelate. Teach them how we do what we do.

If you have time to go above even that, teach them the why by teaching them doctrine, strategy and airpower history, or show them where this information can be found. Lead them to the water. Inspire them to drink the water.

Learning by walking around is so easy to do. It can be done at any level and the benefits are immeasurable. You get smart Airmen who understand the mission and how they contribute to it. It may take a little extra time out of your work day, but it will be time well-spent. If you’re too busy to develop your troops, you are doing something wrong or your priorities may need a little adjusting.

Take the time. Develop your troops. Develop Airmen.

"It is the one medal wanted by few but worn by many," Mr. Randles said.

The Purple Heart is awarded in the name of the president to members of the military who have been wounded in combat or to the next of kin of those killed in action.

The stamp features the medal's image — a profile of George Washington on a purple background within a heart-shaped medallion.

The stamp image is a photograph of one of two Purple Hearts awarded to James Loftus Fowler of Alexandria, Va. He was a lieutenant colonel in the 3rd Battalion, 4th Marines, when he received the Purple Heart in 1968 following action close to the Ben Hai River on the border between North and South Vietnam.

The new Purple Heart stamp went on sale nationally May 27.

101 critical days have arrived

Memorial day marked the start of the Air Force's 101 critical days of summer safety campaign which lasts until Sept. 5.

Historically, the summer months have been a critical period for fatalities. Last year, 29 Airmen lost their lives during this time.

The record is improving, but the challenge and goal remains zero fatalities.

Last year, the deadliest activities were automobile and motorcycle accidents, each claiming nine lives. Alcohol, speeding, fatigue and failure to use seatbelts were the leading factors in these preventable deaths.

Water safety is another area of concern. Fatigue and lack of flotation equipment led to the deaths of five Airmen in water related incidents last year.

Overwhelmingly, the primary factor in fatal mishaps occurs when people fail to apply risk management in their daily lives. It takes direct involvement and emphasis at all levels of leadership, from Major Command commanders to frontline supervisors, to ensure a positive safety culture.

Supervisors must take every opportunity to focus attention on the individual decision-making process and reiterate the importance of personal risk management.

Put simply, all must be trained to think before acting.

Commanders are advised to review the Air Force safety center Web site at afsafety.af.mil/index.html. Mishap Prevention materials that can be shared with Airmen can be found there.

Commanders must convince each Airman to drink responsibly, to not drink and drive and to not take a curve too fast on a motorcycle.

It must become second nature for each of our Airmen to weigh the risks of their activities, both on and off duty.

Let's enjoy a safe summer together; a summer with no senseless fatalities.

(This story was composed from a memo from Chief of Staff of the Air Force Gen. Michael Moseley to the troops)

When there is an emergency, time is of the essence and the need for expediency is paramount."

Below are some points to keep in mind in case an emergency does occur:

1. Remain calm.

"Order is a necessity in averting a tragedy," Sergeant Friedman said.

2. Account for each family member or additional member of your party.

"If you misplace a child during the air show there will be a 'lost child' area near the 'KidZone'," Sergeant Friedman said. "The zone is located in the aircraft washrack which will be identified on the air show map included in the air show supplement."

3. Listen for the Giant Voice.

"We make sure our information is not confusing or conflicting with other information or instructions being disseminated," Sergeant Friedman said. "We want to keep everyone safe and ensure that whatever the situation, the emergency services element is rapidly and safely handling the situation."

4. Follow the instructions given by emergency services personnel.

5. Stay hydrated.

Beale's new AM radio station will also be up-and-running during the air show to provide members with important information. The station's ID signal numbers are 550 am.

It is recommended that Air Show visitors bring only necessary items on their person and limit the size and contents of carry-in items to those that are essential.

Please note that all carry-in items and persons are subject to search. All unattended bags and items will be removed from the premises.

workers that need a vehicle near the flight line. Limited reserved parking for "Workers" will be at Bldg. 1086 (please see shuttle information above).

First Sergeants will be distributing water and comfort foods, but all workers are encouraged to bring sunscreen, water, and food.

Parking workers will wear BDUs. The parking areas are dispersed and workers will be allowed to drive to their assigned parking area. Parking area workers will be provided safety vests.

All area leaders have been briefed on the parking and traffic plan. Area leaders have also initiated contact with the parking workers that the wing has compiled.

Entry Control Point workers will wear

BDUs and will be working at metal detectors on the flight line. Point of contact for ECP workers is Master Sgt. Eric Hoderland, 634-2339.

Traffic Control Point workers will wear BDUs. They will be directing traffic between the gates and parking areas at key intersections. POC for TCP workers is Tech. Sgt. Joshua Belk, 634-3657.

The Kidzone workers may wear civilian clothes. Workers should arrive at their assigned shift time at the aircraft wash rack, Bldg. 1072. POC for KidZone workers is Steve Watson, 634-2283.

Vendor Booth workers may wear civilian clothes. POC for booth workers is Ms. Stephanie Shawles, 634-3445.

Community Briefs

Child care for the Air Show

Child care will be available during the air show from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Current child development center customers have two choices: CDC or Extended Duty Care. CDC customers who stay under their 50 hours per week will not be charged. The cost for customers who go over their 50 hours per week depends on current pay category; customers can divide weekly rates by 50 to determine hourly rate. EDC is a free service paid by the Air Force at a family child care home. People who are not current CDC customers also have two choices. The CDC hourly rate is $3.50. EDC is available also. For EDC, customers must provide a letter or e-mail from their supervisor stating they are working. For more information, call the CDC at 634-4717 or EDC at 634-5655. For questions, call Mischa Bunnett at 634-2804.

Death announcement

Any person or persons having claims for or against the estate of Airman Christopher Scarabello, assigned to the 9th Mission Support Squadron, Beale Air Force Base, California, and previously assigned to Osan Air Base, Korea, should contact the Summary Court Officer, Maj. Chuck Arnold, at 634-3104.

Air Force National Guard recruiter

Discover the benefits of serving part-time in the Air National Guard. For more information contact the 234th Intelligence Squadron Recruiting and Retention NCO, Tech. Sgt. Christopher Bailey at 634-5822.

New name

The Family Support Center recently changed its name to the Airman and Family Readiness Center. When calling, do not be afraid of the new name; management and support is still the same.

Car Buying and Home Buying

Car Buying and Home Buying Classes are now self-paced modules in the Discovery Resource Center at the Airman and Family Readiness Center.

Beale pavement schedule

Below is a pavement schedule with tentative start and completion dates:

The housing Shoppette is being paved and a new parking lot is being added. The shoppette will remain open, although some interruptions may occur at the pump. Completion is scheduled for Wednesday.

The Beale Child Development Center parking lot is being repaved and will also remain open. Completion is scheduled for Wednesday.

The Aerospace Ground Equipment parking lot is being repaved beginning today. It will remain open and completion is scheduled for July 2.

Officer's Christian fellowship summer socials

Officer's Christian Fellowship will have its first summer social and bible study on June 10 at 4:30. This event is for officers of the Christian faith that want to connect with others at Beale. Dinner and childcare are provided. Membership in OCF not required. For more information, email Maj. Raymond Simmons at raymond.simmons@beale.af.mil.

New services at BX (limited time)

The Base Exchange has recently added two new services.

Tacos El Jirasol provides the base with authentic Mexican food and will be available until Aug. 30. It is located at the BX food court and is currently available from 11 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. The other new service is the "Cross T" events book tent, available until June 26. The tent has children's books, adult's books, novels, medical books, history books, gardening books, religious books and much more at 20 to 90 percent off retail prices.

Meet the Thunderbirds

All base members are invited to the Thunderbirds welcome reception at Recce Point at 5:30 p.m. tonight. Come out and meet the Thunderbirds and enjoy a live band and free food. Uniform is uniform of the day, or casual dress. For more information, call Capt. Lauren Maher-Dycus at 634-0919.

Pet microchipping

The Beale Vet Clinic is providing low-cost microchipping June 23 from 8:30 to 11 a.m. The cost is $18.50 and no appointment is needed. Patrons of Beale's veterinary services must be enrolled in the DEERS program. For more information, call 634-2104.

The next TAP workshop is scheduled for July 10 through 14, Monday from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., Tuesday to Friday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Attendees must have completed the mandatory pre-separation briefing.

People who attend this should bring a draft resume. Transition into the civilian community smoother and find employment faster. Learn about veterans' benefits and have medical record reviewed. For more information, call the FSC at 634-2863.

Resume Writing Workshop

A resume writing workshop is scheduled for June 27 from 9 a.m. to noon at the FSC. For more information, call 634-2863.

Update duty history online

All Airmen are responsible for reviewing their duty history and requesting changes, additions or deletions online through the virtual Military Personnel Flight beginning Tuesday. Airmen can enter the vMPF by logging onto the Air Force Personnel Center's secure Web site where they can access their duty history under "Most Popular Applications" or "Self-Service Actions/Personal Data." Each Airman will be responsible for justifying changes by providing supporting documentation.

Members requesting an action related to duty history can log on to the Personal Services Delivery Transformation Web site and click on "duty history" at <http://ask.afpc.randolph.af.mil/psd>.

PSD centralizes active-duty retirement applications online

The active duty retirement program is going virtual and applications are now processed at the Air Force Contact Center as part of the first phase of the Personnel Services Delivery Transformation. Airmen eligible and interested in retiring will initiate the process online via the virtual Military Personnel Flight. The retirement self-service application in the vMPF will give Airmen step-by-step instructions for retiring.

9th SVS offers something for everyone

By Airman 1st Class George Cloutier
9th RW Public Affairs

From swimming, to piano lessons, grabbing lunch with friends or playing a few holes of golf, everyone has their own way of spending their free time.

To ensure those opportunities are readily available for Beale personnel and families, the 9th Services Squadron Community Support Flight works to provide quality leisure time activity and recreation.

"We are here to provide leisure time activity to enhance quality of life for the Beale community," said Dick Mullins, 9th Services Squadron Community Support Flight director.

"It's a stress relief for the active duty," said William Baltzell, 9th Services Squadron deputy director. "All of our programs are healthy options for recreation."

Such options include bowling, golf, shooting sports, auto skills and fitness programs. Other less well-known activities are also offered at Beale which could prove to be just as exciting.

"One lesser known program that I'm surprised more people don't take advantage of is our Aero Club," Mr. Mullins said. "One thing that most people don't really think about is learning how to fly."

Even if someone can't seem to find something that interests them among the various selections of activities provided by the community activity flight, there is still the option of starting something new.

"We can handle any reasonable request for leisure time activity," Mr. Mullins said. "We're always looking for new ideas and new activities."

In order to make these activities happen however, a certain level of interest must be made before ideas can be supported.

"Demand driven is what we operate on, meaning that our programs continue to operate and new programs start based on the demand for those activities," Mr. Baltzell said. "ICE (interactive community assessment) comments, verbal, advisory councils, right start programs, FTAC (first term Airman center), these are all ways we get feedback from people to assess demand."

New activities are starting up in the near future as well.

"We've got some people interested in archery who are trying to set up an archery club at the rod and gun club," Mr. Mullins said. "There are also people who are trying to set up a dirt bike track as an on-base private organization."

Though they would like to support every idea, there are limitations to what the community activity flight can support.

"For the most part, we have to generate our own funds to operate," Mr. Mullins said. "In addition to generating leisure time activities, we have to make sure we're meeting our bottomline."

Funds for the community support flight's programs come in two ways, by appropriated funds, which are given by the government, and by troop dollars, which are dollars earned through the flight's programs. Personnel are also broken down into these two categories of appropriated and non-appropriated funding.

"We have 34 appropriated fund people, and we have more than 200 nonappropriated fund people working on base," said Mr. Baltzell.

With all the presently available activities and all the new activities in the works for the near future, Beale personnel will have plenty to keep occupied through the summer and beyond.

The only way to take advantage of these great opportunities is to get involved.

Reserve offers released lieutenants chance to serve

By Master Sgt. Gary Johnson
Air Force Reserve Command Recruiting Service Public Affairs

ROBINS AIR FORCE BASE, Ga. — Air Force lieutenants involuntarily separated as a result of force reductions have until Aug. 1 to join the Air Force Reserve to continue their military careers without a break in service.

On May 10, the Air Force released the names of 884 lieutenants who are to be involuntarily separated because of force reductions. The Air Force removed 192 names from the list May 25 after a records review. Those officers will have their records reconsidered during a special review board June 26.

Officers not selected for retention can submit Palace Chase applications to join the Air Force Reserve and apply for positions identified in the Reserve Management Vacancy System. Many Reserve vacancies are in the pilot, navigator, special operations, command and control, combat control, space and missile, intelligence and health profession career fields, according to Reserve recruiting officials. Officers can apply for retraining into some of those career fields if they qualify.

“We will do our best to place these officers using the resources available to us,” said Col. Francis Mungavin, commander of Air Force Reserve Command Recruiting Service.

Over the next few months, Air Force Reserve in-service recruiters will contact the affected lieutenants to provide opportunities to continue serving as traditional reservists.

According to Senior Master Sgt. Vincent Meyer, senior recruiter in Denver, all officers with fewer than eight years of total military service are required to sign an Inactive Ready Reserve agreement. The agreement automatically gives them a Reserve commission.

Also, all released officers who qualify for separation pay are required to sign and accept a Reserve commission.

“It is imperative that our in-service recruiters continue to brief all of these officers and reiterate their options so they can make a well-informed decision,” Sergeant Meyer said.

“We have begun contacting those officers who were on the non-retention list released on May 10. The Air Force Reserve is one option that will allow them to continue to serve as part of the Total Force,” said Senior Master Sgt. Leslie Russell, senior recruiter in Europe.

General Moseley knighted

By Staff Sgt. Todd Lopez
Air Force Print News

WASHINGTON — Chief of Staff of the Air Force Gen. T. Michael Moseley was knighted during a ceremony at the British Embassy here May 30.

The honorary knighthood, at the suggestion of Queen Elizabeth II, stems from the general’s contributions to United States-United Kingdom relations while he served as commander of the air war over Afghanistan and Iraq at the onset of the war on terrorism.

General Moseley learned he would receive the award in January.

He said he was both honored and surprised that the United Kingdom has chosen him for the recognition.

“It is, of course, a great honor to be recognized in this way,” he said. “It’s really a tribute to the outstanding cooperation between our two great countries and, of course, a tribute to the historic and continuing relationship between the Royal Air Force and the United States Air Force. I am humbled to represent our wonderful Airmen and I am honored to be considered for this recognition.”

The general will be given the honorary title “Knight Commander of the British Empire,” and will be a member of the Order of the British Empire.

Other Americans with honorary knighthoods include: retired Army Gen. and President Dwight D. Eisenhower; President Ronald Reagan; retired Gen. Jimmy Doolittle; retired Gen. Carl Spaatz; retired Gen. Brent Scowcroft; retired Army Gen. Tommy Franks and retired Army Gen. and former Secretary of State Colin Powell.

King George V created the Order of the British Empire in 1917, during World War I. The only criterion for being included in the order is valuable service to the British Empire.

There are more than 100,000 living members of the order throughout the world. Every four years, members may attend a service at the order’s chapel in the Crypt of St. Paul’s Cathedral in London.

Leaders hold key to AFSO 21 success

By Master Sgt. Mitch Gettle
Air Force Print News

WASHINGTON — A cornerstone of the secretary of the Air Force's tenure is Air Force Smart Operations 21. He recently said that Air Force leaders hold the key to success for the initiative.

"I have told our leaders that we cannot allow AFSO 21 to escape the wing leadership, whether that is the wing commander, group or squadron commanders or command chief," said Michael W. Wynne. "(Ownership of AFSO21) has to stay in that cradle. This is the leverage that we need to make innovative Airmen to feel comfortable bringing forward ideas that make their job easier."

Secretary Wynne believes where a leader spends his time is where a leader is really committed.

"Our command sections have to think about how much time they are spending on Smart Operations," he said. "If those leaders spend a fair amount of time on it, learning it themselves and learning it on behalf of their people, it will become an institutionalized event."

For AFSO 21 to work, it is important that a good idea does not get stuck at the lower echelons. Every Airman should feel comfortable bringing an improvement idea to the command section as long as there is a rationale on whether it is a good thing to change, keep or get rid of, Secretary Wynne said.

"Sometimes people feel bound and constrained by their immediate work environment," Secretary Wynne said. "It will take command leadership to expand (those people's thought process) to see that their environment impinges upon their suppliers and customers.

"This is all about making sure we get ideas from the people who are actually involved in a process to make the Air Force more efficient and effective," he said.

AFSO 21 is not something that comes and goes. It will be with the Air Force for a long time, he said.

"Some of our segments have been using AFSO 21 principles for a long time," Secretary Wynne said. "We are identifying different ways to do business by looking for continual process improvement. Cutting waste time is significant to improving processes."

He gave an example for cutting waste time by explaining the process for a staff summary sheet that must go from office to office or building to building.

"The waste time is in the fact that the paper sits in the inbox, not the fact that we had a diligent individual deliver it from office to office," he said. "There is no value added by rushing the paper from place to place if the paper just sits in the in box."

Finding process improvements takes time and not all things can be changed. Some processes have been put in place for good reasons like safety and continuity. But, the Air Force needs to reexamine some of its constraints to make sure they are still valid, he said.

"This means we also need to have a process to change (or rescind) Air Force instructions," Secretary Wynne said. "I know Air Force instructions are valid and I don't want to see them go away unless they are an impediment to good performance or are irrelevant today."

Commissaries remind customers to be prepared

*By Capt. Audricia McKinney and Bonnie Powell
Defense Commissary Agency*

FORT LEE, Va. - With memories still lingering from Hurricane Katrina, the need to prepare for a disaster is on everyone's mind. Government agencies and the Red Cross recommend Americans keep a supply of essentials on hand above and beyond what they normally have on their kitchen shelves.

Military families are being encouraged to "load up their pantries" as the Defense Commissary Agency launches an awareness campaign encouraging military families to keep nonperishable foods, water and other necessities on hand for emergencies.

DeCA is teaming up with the Armed Forces Emergency Services Branch of the American Red Cross to raise awareness of disaster preparedness throughout the military community. The "What's in Your Closet" campaign kicks off in June and is intended to get military families thinking about how prepared they are for a disaster. Customers will see posters and handouts in stores, and reminder buttons on employees.

"The storm season starts June 1 and it's a fact that commissaries and military families have been affected by hurricanes and typhoons at home and abroad," said Patrick Nixon, chief executive officer and acting director of the Defense Commissary Agency. "We want to raise awareness of the need to keep emergency supplies on hand - and that shoppers can realize savings of 30 percent or more by using their commissary benefit to supply their emergency closet."

The media has also heightened awareness of the possibility of a "pandemic," an outbreak of infectious disease that has the potential to spread worldwide. "Disasters can take on many forms," said Joseph Moffat, executive director, Armed Forces Emergency Services. "From blackouts to blizzards, to tornadoes and earthquakes, everyone should be prepared with enough emergency supplies to last seven days."

"The commissary disaster preparedness posters have a list of basic items people might want to consider," said Nixon. "But there may be many more items such as shelf-stable milk or favorite snacks that people might want to include. This is simply intended to get people thinking and get them to take action - now."

Red Cross representatives will have the opportunity to set up displays or tables in commissaries to provide information and answer questions about disaster preparedness. The type of information and events offered will vary according to location, and in some cases customers will also have the opportunity to sign up for volunteer services and classes, such as first aid or disaster preparedness.

Other government agencies such as the Department of Homeland Security and the Federal Emergency Management Agency are working closely with local communities and relief organizations to remind residents to make emergency preparations.

For more information on disaster preparedness: www.fema.gov; www.dhs.gov; www.redcross.org.

The Defense Commissary Agency operates a worldwide chain of commissaries providing groceries to military personnel, retirees and their families in a safe and secure shopping environment. Authorized patrons purchase items at cost plus a 5-percent surcharge, which covers the costs of building new commissaries and modernizing existing ones. Shoppers save an average of 30 percent or more on their purchases compared to commercial prices - savings worth about $2,700 annually for a family of four. A core military family support element, and a valued part of military pay and benefits, commissaries contribute to family readiness, enhance the quality of life for America's military and their families, and help recruit and retain the best and brightest men and women to serve their country.

Recce Challenge Series wraps up

Last Thursday, May 25th, 14 tight-knit teams of athletes shared a penchant for adventure racing. They experienced the Recce Challenge Adventure Series in full force with the 4-person Team Adventure Race. All team members started at the Outdoor Adventure Center completing 8 miles of biking, 2 miles of running and 1/4 mile of paddling which they did around Beale's own Upper Blackwelder Lake. This kind of race gives perspective during life's most challenging moments and brings the team rewards which are brought by shared sweat, suffering, and physical exhaustion. This amazing race was exciting to watch! There were many bystanders cheering their favorite teams on. After the results of the race came in, Colonel H. D. Polumbo, Commander of the 9th Reconnaissance Wing, announced the winners and handed them trophies. Major Whelan, the 9th Services Squadron Commander and creator of the Recce Challenge Adventure Series, and Marcell George, Director of Harris Fitness Center drew raffle tickets and gave away hundreds of dollars worth of prizes. Given away were several gift certificates donated by AAFES, bike helmets, bike computers, and two bike gift certificates. Everyone who participated in the Recce Challenge Adventure received T-shirts, a coin, water bottle and a pen. A nutritional breakfast was provided before the race and pizza was offered after the race. Many of the participants expressed just how much they enjoyed the Recce Challenge, "I really thought today's event

Ready, set...RACE!!

Mountain Mommas vs. Dirt Divas.

Taking it in stride with good company.

Nobody treading water here...

The Recce Challenge creator & crew.

The Boss hands trophies to the Human Humvees.

was awesome!" said Capt Lauren Maher-Dycus, "I didn't think it could get better...but it did!" She went on to say, "I know it isn't easy to put on an event of this magnitude, I know that the Harris Fitness Center's efforts are greatly appreciated and I can't wait for the Triathlon!"

The Triathlon involves swimming

8 laps, biking 9.5 miles on road or mountain bike 6.5 miles and running approximately 2 miles. The Triathlon is an individual or relay style competition, the categories within each division are; Men's, Men's Masters (over 40) Women's, and Women's Masters (over 40). The Triathlon is scheduled for August so there is plenty of time to prepare yourself physically and mentally.

Marcell expressed how pleased he was about the 4-Person Team Adventure Race and said he's received many positive comments. "We have definitely grown leaps and bounds. We have taken all of the constructive criticism from past events and tweaked the finish product." He also wanted to thank all the volunteers and sponsors, Corinthian Homes, Vittek and AAFES for helping make this event such a success.

For more information on the Triathlon event contact the Harris Fitness Center at 634-2258.
